Kennebec Savings Bank Announces New Board Member

Augusta, ME -William Sprague Jr., Chair of the Kennebec Savings Bank Board of Directors, has announced the addition of Amy Tardiff, Esq. to the Board of Directors. Amy is the vice president and general counsel at her family owned commercial printing company, J.S. McCarthy Printers, where she focuses on general business, employment, and compliance matters. "I am pleased to welcome Amy as our newest member of our Board of Directors. I am confident that Amy's broad range of skills and experiences will make her a valuable asset to the Bank."

Prior to returning to her home state of Maine, Tardiff worked as a business and finance attorney in Pittsburgh, PA where her practice areas included single and multi-bank financing transactions; financing for US exporters; healthcare employment, governance and compliance matters; mergers and acquisitions; contract negotiation; and business formation and compliance. She earned her undergraduate degree at McGill University in Montreal, Canada. She later attended Duquesne University, where she earned her law degree, magna cum laude, as well as a Master's in Business Administration. Tardiff and her family reside in Manchester.

Andrew Silsby, President & CEO said, "In addition to her business expertise, Amy is widely respected for her strong commitment to the enhancing the lives of people of our region through a number of charitable causes. We are fortunate and very pleased to have her on board."
